FACILITY MANAGEMENT GETS AN UPGRADE

The World of Facilities Expo is specifically designed to bring suppliers and their customers together face-to-face. It attracts users and decision-makers at all levels from a huge range of industries.

The next time you step onto the polished floor of a glitzy mall or building, you will be surprised to know who is responsible for the mirror finish, the smart security personnel and the impeccable arrangement of facilities. All of these come under the broad term of facility management which has undergone a sea change from its original concept. What earlier may have just meant a function being essayed on an in-house basis or by petty contractors has now evolved into various value-added services, using advanced levels of technology and cost-saving measures.

Apart from specialised agencies stepping in for facility management, real estate developers are now also adopting technologies that are more upgraded in quality and control. This allows multiple buildings to be managed by a core expert group of professionals thereby reducing cost and operational risks.

A study in 2009 by CRISIL on the real estate development in the country revealed that India is likely to add more than 150 million Sq Ft of office. The addition alone can generate more than 1 lakh Jobs in the Housekeeping and Janitorial Services. Big metropolitan cities are adding malls, restaurants, Technology Parks and Integrated campuses. SEZs, Integrated plants, Ports and Highways, these facilities require large and integrated players to manage the operations. Employment generation potential in this segment is huge.
